16th SgtMaj. of the Marine Corps assumes post

By Staff Sgt. Christina C. Delai Headquarters Marine Corps

WASHINGTON-- Sgt. Maj. Carlton W. Kent assumed the position as the 16th Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps from Sgt. Maj. John L. Estrada during a post-and-relief ceremony April 25 at Marine Barracks Washington.

During the ceremony, Estrada passed the sword of office to Commandant of the Marine Corps Gen. James T. Conway who then passed the sword to Kent. The passing of swords between Marine Corps leaders signifies the completion of one tour and the beginning of another.

"I think the next few years [for the Corps] are going to be exciting," said Estrada, during an interview earlier in the week. "It's even more exciting to see General Conway's vision of where he's taking our Corps. I would love to be apart of it – but all good things come to an end."

Estrada will retire later this year after completing more than 34 years in the Marine Corps.

Kent, who has been in the Marine Corps for more than 31

years, has served in various key billets throughout his career to include a Marine security guard, drill instructor, and Naval Aviation Officers Candidate School drill instructor. He has also served as sergeant major of 2nd Recruit Training Battalion and Recruit Training Regiment, Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif., and sergeant major of Marine Forces Europe.

It was Kent's time as sergeant major of I MEF and the motivational comments he made to thousands of Marines in Iraq before the battle for Fallujah in 2004 that will stand out in the memories of Marines for years to come.

"You're all in the process of making history," Kent told his Marines in 2004. "This is another Hue city in the making. I have no doubt, if we do get the word, that each and every one of you is going to do what you have always done - kick some butt."

Kent spent 13 months straight in Iraq as the senior enlisted leader.

I would like to thank Darlene Piper for the great work she does supporting the employees at MCB through her timely assistance in the IT arena. Her skills and positive attitude are worthy of emulation.

I would like to give a special "Thank You" to Danielle Heinze of the Base Adjutants Office. I hadn't used the DTS system in quite awhile, and she took the time to walk me through it, and also smoothed the way when the new updates to the system changed my orders at the last minute. Europe in the early 5th century braced itself as the "Scourge of God" swept across the continent leaving terror in his wake. This "scourge" was Attila the Hun, perhaps the most ferocious enemy of the fledgling Roman Empire. He ruled the Hunnic Empire, a ragtag group of Central Asian and Western European tribes whose warriors had mastered the use of the bow while riding on horseback. Though the Huns often fought more cultured and highly civilized cultures, their thirst for combat and their unmatched mobility allowed the Huns to route enemies twice their size.

It was in 440 AD that Attila began to push towards Rome, the capital city of the Western Roman Empire. Attila and his brother, Bleda, were merciless as they devastated towns and villages across the Eastern European steppes. Rome trembled as they anticipated the arrival of these blood-thirsty madmen. But, they were able to temporarily appease the Hun by promising to pay over 2,000 kilograms of gold if the Huns would leave the Roman Empire. Attila and his army did turn back. However, the riches of the Roman Empire were just too great to leave alone and within four years the Huns resumed their march towards

It was on this second push that Bleda, Attila's brother, mysteriously died. Most historians agree that Bleda's death came at the hand of Attila who ambitiously desired to be sole ruler of the Huns. Now, without a rival and all of the Roman Empire before him, Attila embarked on one of the cruelest tirades in history. The fear of the Huns was so devastating that the citizens of many villages and towns chose to kill themselves in suicide rather than be captured by the Huns and suffer their torturous deeds. When Attila the Hun would capture a town, he would first enter the churches and monasteries, seize the monks and priests and have them executed in front of the citizens.

Cyber Criminals

In light of the recent tragedy at Virginia Tech, cyber criminals looking to take advantage of complacent web surfers are flooding e-mail boxes with spam messages that sound sincere, but are really attempts at committing law breaking activities.

These spam messages offer "authentic" camera phone footage of the Virginia Tech shootings, which are meant to take advantage of a person's natural occurring curiosity of what it would've been like to witness such an event. Unfortunately, these e-mails contain Malware that can come in the form of a virus or a Trojan horse, which is specifically designed to disrupt a person's computer and attempts to steal banking passwords, user names and account numbers.

Overall, the e-mails are meant to cause a bunch of disruption within a person's computer system

To recognize these e-mails better, be aware that when opened, they will display a link to a file named "Terror_em_Virginia.scr," and if downloaded, the link will install a banking Trojan on the user's computer.

As an internet user, take extreme caution when downloading links that are sent to you by unidentified sources. Even then though, think carefully about the reliability of sources before downloading information from them.

Meat Recall

Richwood Meat Company Inc., is voluntarily recalling approximately 107,943 pounds of frozen ground beef products because they may be contaminated with E. coli, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service announced.

The problem was discovered through sampling done by the California Department of Health Services in the course of an investigation.

The ground beef was produced on April 28, 2006 and was sent to retail outlets in Arizona, California, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. E. coli is a potentially deadly bacterium that can cause bloody diarrhea and dehydration. The very young, seniors and persons with compromised immune systems are the most susceptible to food borne illness.

Consumers with questions about the recall should contact company Vice -President Steve Wood at (209) 722-8171, ext. 14.

The labels of the products subject to recall bear the establishment number EST. 8264 inside the USDA mark of inspection. Only products with a date code of 118-6 or 4/28/06 are subject to recall.

Previous recalls and frequently asked questions are available at the following web site: http://www.dscp.dla.mil/subs/proserv/alfood

Military Spouse Appreciation Day

Since 1984, the armed forces have set aside a day to honor the heroes that stay at home. We're talking about, of course, the men and women who support their spouses who serve their country in the United States military. This year, May 11 has been designated as military spouse appreciation day.

The life of a military family is one of unique challenges. These challenges are currently exacerbated by the high operational tempo of the Marine Corps. In spite of the challenges, military spouses continue to demonstrate strength, devotion and grace.

Bulldogs strike out during season opener

By Cpl. Quentin Grogan Combat Correspondent

It is that time of year again. The glove is dusted off, the cleats are dug up from the bottom of the closet and the bat is taken out for the first time in months. It is softball season.

The Barstow Bulldogs, led by coach Michael Woods, began their season three weeks ago with weekly practices to prepare for the 2007 Barstow Softball League. The season officially opened April 24.

To begin the season, the Bulldogs were pitted against Blurred Vision.

The Bulldogs took

of the other team and jumped out to an early 2-0 lead in the first inning.

That would all change in the third inning. With a 2-1 advantage of the bad eye sight lead, the Bulldogs gave up eight runs in the inning alone to face a 9-2 deficit.

> In the fifth inning, the Bulldogs managed to score two more runs, but by then Blurred Vision had hammered them with five more runs. With a score of 14-4, the game was called due to the 10 run mercy

> After dropping the first game of the season, the Bulldogs stepped onto the field again for game two of their doubleheader against Desert West Media. The outcome was not much difnot get an early lead. The dogs fell back early and never regained any ground on the opposition.

> The game ran out of time after using the entire hour allotted to finish a game. The Bulldogs lost again, dropping the

Even though the Bulldogs are off to a bad start, there are still many games left.

"It is still early; it is hard to judge how the team is going to do after two games," said

Woods. "A bad start does not really mean much, it is how you finish."

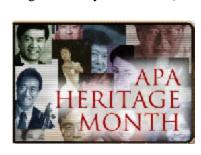

Games are played every Tuesday night. Game times may vary between 6:30, 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. at the Robert A. Sessions Sports Park.

2007 Asian Pacific American Heritage Month

MARADMIN 278/07

May is designated as Asian Pacific American Heritage Month. The 2007 theme is "pursuing excellence through leadership, diversity and unity." Asian Pacific American Heritage Month was originally introduced as Pacific/Asian Heritage Week by Congressmen Frank Horton and Norman Mineta in the House of Representatives in July 1977.

Oct 23, 1992, the 102nd Congress unanimously approved Public Law 102-450; designating May as Asian Pacific American Heritage Month.

When Asian immigrants first arrived in the United States, they were welcomed in some places, and tolerated in others. In the late 1800's, Chinese and other Asians were legally excluded from citizenship and quotas were placed on their immigration to the United States. These laws were repealed during World War II. Further immigrationlaw changes made it easier for > Asians to enter the United States.

Asian Pacific Americans have contributed immensely to our nation.

Until World War II, there had been little effort to document their contributions to United States history and culture.

The following Asian Pacific American contributions to DoD and the nation that were compiled by Robert I. Worden of the Library of Congress:

- May 1, 1898: Japanese Americans serve on U.S. warships in battle of Manila Bay.
- Sep 24, 1911: Filipino Army Pvt. Jose B. Nisperos earns Medal of Honor for heroism in the Philippines.
- Feb 19, 1942: President Roosevelt signs Executive Order 9066 providing for internment of Japanese Americans.
- Dec 17, 1943: President Roosevelt signs repeal for Chinese Exclusion Act; soon thereafter 14,000 Chinese Americans drafted into armed forces.
- June 29, 1946: Congress passes GI Fiancees Act, enabling women or men engaged to U.S. service members to immigrate to United States.
  - July 15, 1946: the 442nd

Combat Team receives the Presidential Distinguished Unit Citation from President Truman in Washington. The unit was the most decorated for its size and length of service in U.S. military history. From 1943 to 1945, members received seven Presidential Unit Citations and more than 18,000 individual awards, including one Medal of Honor, 52 Distinguished Service Crosses, 560 Silver Stars, 4,000 Bronze Stars and 9,486 Purple Hearts.

- Jan 28, 1986: astronaut Air Force Lt. Col. Ellison Shoji Onizuka dies in Space Shuttle Challenger explosion. Onizuka, a Japanese American, served on the first DoD space shuttle mission.
- Today, there are more than 3,700 Asian Pacific Americans proudly serving our

"Go for Broke" Regimental Corps with honor, courage and commitment. Two of those Marines, Master Gunnery Sergeant Esekia L. Motu, SNCOIC and warehouse chief, base supply, Marine Corps Base, Camp Smedley D. Butler, Okinawa, Japan, and Lance Corporal Ellis I. Lee, ammunition technician, 2d Platoon, Detachment 1, Ammunition Company, Rome, Georgia, were awarded the 2006 Federal Asian Pacific American Council (FAPAC) Meritorious Service Award for fostering an innovative and harmonic environment between the military and the Asian Pacific American civilian community, and assisting the workforce in overcoming discrimination and eliminating barriers that hinder equal opportunity for Asian Pacific Americans and other minorities in the armed forces.

Then he would randomly select townsfolk to be exterminated. Survival under Attila was purely at the pleasure of the "Scourge of God."

Though on the battlefield Attila seemed invincible, he did have one weakness. Attila loved women and he was determined to have as many wives as his heart desired. It is estimated that Attila had some 400 wives. It was his final wife that ended up being his downfall.

By 452 AD, Attila the Hun had literally forced Europe to its knees and he was plotting yet another raid on the Eastern Roman Empire.

This raid was designed to revenge his love for Honoria, the sister of the Roman Emperor Valentinian III. When Valentinian III defied Attila's demand for Honoria and instead gave his sister to be the wife of a prestigious Roman senator, Attila marched towards Rome with the purpose of sacking the city and kidnapping Honoria.

All along the way, Attila destroyed everything in his path. But, when Attila reached the capital city, he was not met by a Roman army, but rather Pope Leo I, the leader of the Church of Rome. Leo I successfully convinced Attila to spare the city of Rome. Attila, enjoying the tribute money Rome provided, agreed to this and retreated back into central Europe.

By the time Attila returned to his castle, he was over his love for Honoraria and instead found new love in Ildico, a young, beautiful woman. It was on his wedding night, after enjoying a day of feasting a drinking that Attila the Hun had a nosebleed in his sleep. Because he was in such drunken stupor, he failed to awake and died by drowning in his own blood. It is ironic that Attila was able to survive the bloodiest experiences of combat only to be taken down by the most unassuming of injuries.

Have you ever heard the statement that it takes a lifetime to build a reputation and only a minute to destroy it? As I think about this story of Attila the Hun, that thought comes to mind. Attila the Hun, the "Scourge of God", reckless, fearless, and guilty of the bloodshed of thousands, died because of a nosebleed. He had survived so much, but one little thing ended his life.

In our Christian walk, the same is true. We can do so much for the Lord, but just one seemingly "little" mistake can permanently change our testimony. Just one indiscretion can ruin our entire witness for Jesus Christ. In Galatians 5, the Apostle Paul gives instruction on maintaining a Christian walk. He says: "Ye did run well; who did hinder you that ye should not obey the truth? This persuasion cometh not of him that calleth you. A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." (vs. 7-9)

Leaven in this passage is a symbol of sin. In other words, a little sin can ruin everything. Just one seemingly insignificant sin has the potential to render our testimony for the cause of Christ to be meaningless. But, Paul then says in verse 25 that "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit." As Christians we must surrender ourselves to the work of the Holy Spirit and beware of even the smallest of sins that could destroy our walk with the Lord. We need to make sure we do not allow a "spiritual nosebleed" to take us down.

"I am looking forward to being able to continue to serve with the great Marines [and] sailors we have in our Corps," said Kent, who served as the I Marine Expeditionary Force, Camp Pendleton, Calif., sergeant major, prior to his current assignment. "I look forward to being a combat multiplier for Marines and their families by getting out and hearing what their issues are and making recommendations to our commandant."
